

PRIVACY POLICY

To protect our clients, we will only disclose confidential information to individuals as necessary to provide our products and services to you. We do not sell, publish or otherwise transfer sensitive client information to any non-affiliated third party.

Information we collect may be shared on our internal systems, such as customer relationship management applications, which utilize multiple levels of security to protect against unauthorized access. We maintain electronic safeguards to protect your information.

During your visit to our web site, we gather general information such as IP address, browser type, and time spent on various pages. This information helps us customize our site and determine marketing efforts.

COMPENSATION DISCLOSURE

Richards Robinson Sheppard Insurance, LLC and certain members of its staff are licensed as insurance producers. Our collective compensation for providing insurance service is typically primarily paid to us by insurance companies and is customarily based upon the premiums we place with any given company. Certain clients may choose to pay us directly for selected services. We may also receive other compensation (direct monetary compensation as well as other incentive compensation) based upon the overall size or profitability of all the business placed with a given company.